OPINIONS OF THE PRESS Avaianche of Yesterday.|
The Avaianche has not presumed to arge the abolition of courts or the creation of new ones, because these questions should be determined by the lawyers of Memphis, who are competent judges. Litigation in this city and throughout the State was suspended by the war, and when peace came and the courts opened they were flooded with litigation. Again, Memphis is the gateway to Arkansas and Mississippi, and being a commercial and trading city, itigation is always abounding. Among the various reforms proposed as a remedy against the expense of courts, the chief ones for practical results are the change in the jury law in civil causes requiring litigants to demand juries and The fire department quickly repaired to the building, but their services were not required.

The passage of this felolin was due in a great measure to its zealous advocacy by Colonel Finlay, of the Shelby delegation. She had been in the city six weeks, coming here a wave of adversity-her trunks and valuables being in trust for the expense of her coming. She went into Madame Powell's establishment, and from her beauty and accomplishments had proven a "big card" to that place. Camille Carl attended the funeral of Lou Fisher, the landlady of a similar establishment on Second street, who died and was buried a few days ago, and was remarked as the neatest and most appropriately dressed of all those in attendance. She seemed greatly affected by the death of Lou Fisher, and talked much about death under such circumstances. As soon as Lou Fisher's body was put away, and on returning from Elmwood, Ca-mille was heard to observe: "Well, I wonder who will go next?" She little thought, perhaps, that it would so soon be answered, and so directly in her in Lexington, Kentucky:

The Site Chosen, and the Work of Erecting Buildings Beguu -- Interesting Proceedings in Behalf of the In-

The West Tennessee colored universiy, which was chartered some time ago by the legislature, has been located seven miles south of this city, near the Mississippi and Tennessee railroad, and with-in one mile and a half of Whitehaven. The site selected embraces forty acres of fine land, the location of which is well adapted to the purposes for which it has been purchased. In fact, the site is elevated, and commands a picturesque view of the surrounding country, which n point of health and fertility is unrivaled by any in Shelby county. The location has been aptly designated the Peabody hights, and within a short distance of the place where the college will be reared is a clear stream of perennial water, which will not only be useful, but also assist in beautifying the grounds as taste may suggest and means permit. Altogether, the location is admirable and its selection has been judicious. Last Sunday a very large and enthusi-astic meeting in behalf of the enterprise was held in the colored church at Whitehaven, and that the interest is not merely local may be inferred from the fact that there were over seven hundred persons present, many being from Mississippi. The meeting was organized by electing Rev. Burrell i.e., president; Henry Pettis, vice-president; R. A. Henry, secretary, and N D vis, assistant-secretary. H. R. Rankin, a well-known colored lawyer of this city, made an interesting address to the meeting, his subject being, "Intelligence One of the Most Essential Ingredients of True Citizenship." The address was replete with valuable suggestions and good advice. After the address the president appointed the following committee for the purpose of proceeding at once to get out timber and material for the build ings to be erected: Rev. Burrell Lee, R. A. Amy, Person Crockett, N. Davis, Jackson Jeter, and Henry Pettis. AMUSEMENTS.

The Theater. Despite the dark clouds and the flashing lightning, there was a good house at the Theater last night to witness the first appearance in this city of Mr. Joseph K Emmet, the comedian, in the comedy of Fritz, our Cousin German. While the play is highly sensational, it is not to its merits, but to the wit, oddity and humorous drollery of the character "Fritz" that one looks for interest and enjoyment. Mr. Emmet, in the impersonation of "Fritz." is quite amusing, natural, and forcible, though his talent, we dare say, is beyond and far greater than the role he assumes permits display of. The audience was quite appreciative, and by laughter and applause frequently attested the interest aroused. In his character songs and sketches Mr. Emmet was quite at home, and at all times exhibited a cleverness that met with a warm reception from the audience. His specialties, constituting as they do the more prominent features of the play, cannot be objected to, for they fulfill whatever is intended to be conveyed. Mr. Emmet remains here the rest of the week, and we hope to see him attract as full houses as he has elsewhere. The Louisville Courier-Journal in speaking of Mr Emmet, who appeared in that city the first of this month, says: "His presence on the stage is one of the most agreeable we know of among American actors His acting is finished to the last degree, showing the result of thoroughly study ing the minutive of a character. The looker on so thoroughly sympathizes with 'Fritz' in all his situations, that the foibles of the play proper are over-looked. The character of Emmet's songs in the course of the piece also merit particular comment. None of them are mediocre, and some are set to excellet music, in fact, far superior to any songs of a similar character we remember to have heard in the same class of plays. Also his make-up in the
